

Hello there!

My name is Homo habilis, and I am one of the hominins. I was notable for a larger brain case, and thick enamel, which allowed me to eat far more diverse items. I also fully developed stone tools, and was known to leave marks on bones of my prey, and to break the bones to eat the marrow inside. My most notable fossil is Johnny's child, which was the first fossil of my species discovered. Make sure to look at the other hominins, they have some cool information as well!
